Hindu Beliefs and Practices

Hinduism is one of the oldest religions in the world. However, unlike many other religions, Hinduism does not have one main founder, or leader. Indians call it Sanatana Dharma, the faith with no beginning and no end. It all began with the Aryans. The Aryans, who began moving into India around 1500_{BCE}, practiced polytheism; or the worship of more than one god. They believed that different gods controlled different parts of the world, and they offered sacrifices to the gods in order to please them. The priests, who were responsible for rituals and sacrifices, were important members of the Aryan society. The Aryans tolerated the beliefs of the native Indus Valley people, and eventually, elements from both religions blended into a new religion: Hinduism.

Much of the information about the ancient Aryan religion and the origins of Hinduism comes from sacred Hindu texts, called Vedas. There were four different Vedas in all. The Rig-Veda, a series of hymns and poems recited by the early Hindu priests, is believed to have been written around 1300_{BCE}. The different Vedas have special religious meanings to the Hindus, much like the Bible and Torah have special meaning to Christians and Jews.

Legends were also created to simplify the religion's philosophy for the common people. The Puranas, the Ramayana, and the Mahabharata are all stories that teach Hindu values. These legends discuss the pursuit of four goals: righteous living, wealth and prosperity, love and happiness, and an end to the cycle of the birth and death. Through these stories, and their worship services, called Pujas, Hindus learn the basics of their religion.

To someone like us, Hinduism can seem confusing because of their differences in rules. Instead of having rules that everyone follows, Hinduism reveals profound "truths" about life and suggests many different ways to live righteously. Each Hindu chooses the path that best fits his or her life, which gods to worship, and which rituals to follow. An emotional person is free to choose the path of love and devotion, while an intellectual might follow the path of mental discipline, and those who believe that "work is worship" may select the path of selfless service.

There are three beliefs that are central to Hinduism: reincarnation (being reborn), karma, and the law of dharma. Hindus believe that life is an endless cycle of events with no beginning and no end. Death and birth are simply parts of the cycle. Each person is reincarnated, or reborn, repeatedly, until he or she reaches the final supreme goal of Absolute, called Moksha, by overcoming all evils and all earthly desires. Only then is the soul released from the cycle, never to be reincarnated again.

This concept is tied to karma, the belief that everything a person does has a consequence. Both good and bad deeds have an effect on a person's happiness or misery in their present life, as well as in future lives. Whether one reappears in the next life as a plant, an animal, a wealthy nobleman, or a servant, depends on actions performed in the previous life.

The third main concept is that of dharma, or the belief that one is born into a particular station in life and it is his or her moral duty to live according to that station. Hindus feel that they should go about their daily lives without question or complaint, fulfilling their duties to society. If they do a good job, they will be rewarded by being reincarnated at a higher social level in their next life. However, if they do their jobs poorly, they will be punished with a lower social level in the next reincarnation.

Hindu Beliefs and Practices Outline

	is one of the oldest religi	ons in the world
	A. Indians call it	, the faith with no beginning and no end
	B. It all began with the
	i. The Aryans practiced
	ii. The were import	ant members of the Aryan society
	C. Eventually, elements from different religi	ions blended into a new religion:
II. Muc	ch of the information about the origins of Hind	duism comes from the sacred texts, called
	A. There were four different	in all
	B. The is a series of hymr	ns and poems recited by early Hindu priests
	C. The different Vedas have special	meaning to the Hindus
III	were also created to simplify the	e religion's philosophy for the common people
	A. The,	and are all stories that teach Hindu values
	i. These legends discuss the pursuit	of goals:
	a b
	C
	d
IV. Hin	iduism reveals profound about
IV. Hin	duism reveals profound about A. Each Hindu chooses the	t life and suggests many different ways to live righteously
	A. Each Hindu chooses the	t life and suggests many different ways to live righteously that best fits his or her life
	A. Each Hindu chooses the	t life and suggests many different ways to live righteously that best fits his or her life
	A. Each Hindu chooses the	t life and suggests many different ways to live righteously that best fits his or her life
	A. Each Hindu chooses the re are beliefs that are centra A (being reborn)	t life and suggests many different ways to live righteously that best fits his or her life
	A. Each Hindu chooses the re are beliefs that are centra A (being reborn) B	t life and suggests many different ways to live righteously that best fits his or her life al to Hinduism
	A. Each Hindu chooses the re are beliefs that are centra A (being reborn) B C. The law of	t life and suggests many different ways to live righteously that best fits his or her life al to Hinduism —
	A. Each Hindu chooses the re are beliefs that are centra A (being reborn) B C. The law of i. Life is an endless	t life and suggests many different ways to live righteously that best fits his or her life al to Hinduism — e simply parts of the cycle
	A. Each Hindu chooses the re are beliefs that are centra A (being reborn) B C. The law of i. Life is an endless a and birth are b. Each person is	t life and suggests many different ways to live righteously that best fits his or her life al to Hinduism — e simply parts of the cycle
	A. Each Hindu chooses the re are beliefs that are centra A (being reborn) B C. The law of i. Life is an endless a and birth are b. Each person is c. The final supreme goal to	t life and suggests many different ways to live righteously that best fits his or her life al to Hinduism e simply parts of the cycle repeatedly
V. The	A. Each Hindu chooses the re are beliefs that are centra A (being reborn) B C. The law of i. Life is an endless a and birth are b. Each person is c. The final supreme goal to d. Only when you reach Abs	t life and suggests many different ways to live righteously that best fits his or her life al to Hinduism e simply parts of the cycle repeatedly o reach is Absolute, called solute is your released from the cycle
V. The	A. Each Hindu chooses the re are beliefs that are centra A (being reborn) B C. The law of i. Life is an endless a and birth are b. Each person is c. The final supreme goal to d. Only when you reach Abs , the belief that everything a person	t life and suggests many different ways to live righteously that best fits his or her life al to Hinduism
V. The	A. Each Hindu chooses the re are beliefs that are centra A (being reborn) B C. The law of i. Life is an endless a and birth are b. Each person is c. The final supreme goal to d. Only when you reach Abs , the belief that everything a person A. Both good and deeds have	t life and suggests many different ways to live righteously that best fits his or her life al to Hinduism
V. The	A. Each Hindu chooses the re are beliefs that are centra A (being reborn) B C. The law of i. Life is an endless a and birth are b. Each person is c. The final supreme goal to d. Only when you reach Abs , the belief that everything a person A. Both good and deeds have B. Whatever you appear as in the next life d	t life and suggests many different ways to live righteously that best fits his or her life al to Hinduism repeatedly o reach is Absolute, called solute is your released from the cycle in does has a consequence an effect on a person depends on performed in the previous life
V. The	A. Each Hindu chooses the re are beliefs that are centra A (being reborn) B C. The law of i. Life is an endless a and birth are b. Each person is c. The final supreme goal to d. Only when you reach Abs , the belief that everything a person A. Both good and deeds have B. Whatever you appear as in the next life d	t life and suggests many different ways to live righteously that best fits his or her life al to Hinduism e simply parts of the cycle repeatedly o reach is Absolute, called solute is your released from the cycle in does has a consequence an effect on a person lepends on performed in the previous life ef that it is your moral duty to accept what you are born into